Muhammad Hashim Kamali, born in Afghanistan in 1944, is currently Dean of the International Institute of Islamic Thought and Civilisation at the International Islamic University Malaysia, Kuala Lumpur. His books include Principles of Islamic Jurisprudence (Cambridge, and K.L., 1991 and 1998); Freedom of Expression in Islam (Cambridge, and K.L., 1997 and 1998) and Islamic Commercial Law (2001).

Prof. Kamali has done a great service to the students of Islamic Studies by writing a very accessible book on Hadith (sayings of Prophet Muhammad). Unlike other books, which are usually heavy on difficult terminology and deep on the history of Hadith, this work assumes only basic knowledge of religious terms. It then approaches and explains the study of Hadith in a very organized and structured way. The reader is presented with topics which are logically laid out and have just enough examples to prove the point under consideration. In addition, the work explains the evolution of the science of Hadith in a manner which the reader will find very easy to understand. Most importantly, the last chapter identifies some gaps which are present in the field of Hadith and proposes modern research ideas which should be undertaken to cover these gaps. All in all, a very highly recommended work for all students of Hadith.

It ignores any "western" literature on the given issue. But if you DO know about Watt, Melchert, Schacht and the others - you are welcome!
