LINDA SUE PARK is the Newbery Medal-winning author of A Single Shard. Her other books include the novels See-saw Girl, The Kite Fighters, When My Name Was Keoko, and Project Mulberry, as well as three picture books, Bee-Bim Bop!, The Firekeeper's Son, and What Does Bunny See? Ms. Park lives with her family in upstate New York.

I'm surprised this book doesn't have more reviews than it does. It is one of the better books in the series which is not to damn it with faint praise. All the books in the series have been very good to excellent with commendable consistency shown among the various authors. The author of the present book impresses me as somewhat more of a literary craftsman than the others. The book follows the same pattern as the other books in the series. Dan and Amy travel to a new place on the globe in search of a clue. This time they return to the western hemisphere for the first time since the first book, specifically, the Bahamas and then Jamaica. They learn about the life of a Cahill ancestor(s) who left a number of clues to the clue. This time the ancestors are the 18th century female pirate, Anne Bonny and the Jamaican heroine the Nanny of the Maroons. These form the educational content of the book and author Park skillfully and unobtrusively lectures the reader while advancing the plot. While doing all of this Dan and Amy have to fend off attempts from rival Cahills to forestall or co-opt their efforts. Isabel Kabra does the honors this time out. Isabel is delightfully evil without a hint of a redeemable qualities. Her children Ian and Natalie however are being worn down and begin to question their role in the clue hunt. There are some major differences this time around as subplots come to their points. Dan and Amy discover the reason for Nellie's suspiciously high competence and secrecy and meet the mysterious man in black who has followed them around the globe. There is also a tragic death. Park handles the latter with great skill and the reader is affected as much as are Dan and Amy. In short, a great set up for what promises to be a wild finale. Can it live up to a 9 book buildup? I'm anxious to find out. Highly recommended.

This is one of my favorite books, it has this great style and got me really excited to read the next book. I want to find out about the characters, which is usually a great sigh. This maybe my favorite book in the series. At the end you find out who the man in black (Now gray) is. And about there branch. It's fun to read. I think it's mind blowing (sorry if that sounds stupid) its that good. All and All it's a great book to read so give a chance.

the hunt for the 39 clues continues. this time following one of their(amy and dan's) many ancestors Anne Bonny. that leads them to the Bahamas and Jamaica. one of the many reasons i loved this book is that there is more Nellie. another reason is that the man in black/ the man in gray finally reveals himself. i couldn't take my nose out of this book but suggest you don't do the same. in other words- this book rocks!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

The entire series of books is an excellent read. I am now on book 11 and have enjoyed everything about them Even though it is a kids series it is entertaining for adults like myself.

Wonderful children series continued in book 9.

This book captured my attention with its suspense and thrills. I would recommend this book to people who love mystery combined with intelligent writing. congratulations to the authors for capturing this nine-year-old's imagination! I give this book five stars.

Seems legit
