Dr. Richard J. Fruncillo spent most of his professional career as a clinical pharmacologist/human toxicologist conducting phase 1 clinical research studies for a major US pharmaceutical corporation. In addition to being a practicing internal medicine physician, he has an undergraduate degree in chemistry and a PhD in biochemical pharmacology. He is certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine, the American Board of Clinical Pharmacology, and the American Board of Toxicology. He has previously taught pharmacology/toxicology at the medical/graduate school level and is the author of many scientific publications in the areas of basic and clinical pharmacology/toxicology. Currently, he is a consultant to the medical and legal professions in the areas of pharmacology, toxicology, and drug development.

Prompt delivery! Very satisfied with the item!

Absolute must for DABT exam preparation.....keeps you thinking....

The book does not explain it's answers and it is not as user friendly as it could be. The Author uses text books as a reference and hence , this isn't a book written for top notch Toxicologists as it does not use peer reviewed sources.

I am already board certified by the American Board of Toxicology and have undergone two re-certifications. This book will help prepare me for my third and final/permanent recertification.

This book has so many questions on each topic. It helped me to revise Casarett and Doull's after my DABT exam.

Good collection of questions. It would have been great if they put a little explanation for each answer so one could actually use the book to learn as well. But still good just for preparing for exam.

I miss a brief introduction at each topic. However it's a good book of exercises. I recommend to students and teachers that need help to make exams of evaluation.

Make these questions like a game and you will learn the topics and understand what the test will cover. Lots of chapters.
