Synopsis

Winner of the 2016 Man Booker International Prize NAMED ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY The New York Times Book Review, Publisher's Weekly, Buzzfeed, Entertainment Weekly, Time, Wall Street Journal, Bustle, Elle, The Economist, Slate, The Huffington Post, The St. Louis Dispatch, Electric Literature. A beautiful, unsettling novel about rebellion and taboo, violence and eroticism, and the twisting metamorphosis of a soul. Before the nightmares began, Yeong-hye and her husband lived an ordinary, controlled life. But the dreams—“invasive images of blood and brutality”—torture her, driving Yeong-hye to purge her mind and renounce eating meat altogether. It’s a small act of independence, but it interrupts her marriage and sets into motion an increasingly grotesque chain of events at home. As her husband, her brother-in-law and sister each fight to reassert their control, Yeong-hye obsessively defends the choice that’s become sacred to her. Soon their attempts turn desperate, subjecting first her mind, and then her body, to ever more intrusive and perverse violations, sending Yeong-hye spiraling into a dangerous, bizarre estrangement, not only from those closest to her, but also from herself. Celebrated by critics around the world, The Vegetarian is a darkly allegorical, Kafka-esque tale of power, obsession, and one woman’s struggle to break free from the violence both without and within her.

Han writes convincingly of the disruptive power of longing and the choice to either embrace or deny it, using details that are nearly fantastical in their strangeness to cut to the heart of the very human experience of discovering that one is no longer content with life as it is.â An unusual and mesmerizing novel, gracefully written and deeply disturbing."â "Kirkus" Searing...[Yeong-hye's]â extreme efforts to separate herself from her animal appetites reveal the sanity and normality of those closest to her to be mere matchstick houses."â "Helen Oyeyemi, author of *Boy, Snow, Bird*â "Suffused with a sensibilityâ that evokes the matter-of-fact surrealism of Franz Kafka, featuring a female protagonist as engagingly perverse as Melvilleâ ™s Bartleby, Han Kangâ ™s slender but robust novel addresses many vital mattersâ "from the politics of gender to the presumptions of the male gaze, the conundrum of free will to the hegemony of meatâ "with a dark ã©lan that vegetarians and carnivores alike will find hypnotic, erotic, disquieting, and wise.â "James Morrow,â author of GalÃ¡pagos Regained"A strange, painfully tender exploration of the brutality of desire indulged and the fatality of desire ignored, rendered all the more so by Deborah Smith's exquisite translation."â "Eimear McBride, Baileys Women's Prize-winning author of A Girl Is a Half-formed Thing"Visceral and terrifying,â *The Vegetarian*â isâ a startling reminder of the utter unknowability of another's mind. Nonetheless, reading it, you will feel it in your flesh: the desire for peace, a plea for safety, for escape from your own inevitable mortality. It is artfully plotted yet reads like a fever dream, sweeping and surreal. It will leave you aching."â "Sarah Gerard, author of Binary Star"Like a small seed, Han Kangâ ™s startling and unforgettable debut goes to work quietly, but insistently.

Her prose is so balanced, so elegant and assured, you might overlook the depths of this novelâ™s darknessâ "do so at your own peril."â "Colin Winnette, author ofâ Haints Stay andâ Coyoteâ "The Vegetarianâ is a story about metamorphosis, rage and the desire for another sort of life. It is written in cool, still, poetic but matter-of-fact short sentences, translated luminously by Deborah Smith, who is obviously a genius."â "Deborah Levy, author ofâ The Unloved andâ Swimming Home "The Vegetarianâ is hypnotically strange, sad, beautiful and compelling. I liked it immensely."â "Nathan Filer, 2013 Costa First Novel award-winning author ofâ Theâ Shock of the Fall Â "A stunning and beautifully haunting novel. It seems in places as if the very words on the page are photosynthesising. I loved this graceful, vivid book."â "Jess Richards, Costa First Novel Award shortlisted author ofâ Snake Ropes Â "Poetic and beguiling, and translated with tremendous elegance,â The Vegetarianâ exhilarates and disturbs."â "Chloe Aridjis, author ofâ The Book of Cloudsâ œDark dreams, simmering tensions, chilling violenceâ |This South Korean novel is a feastâ |It is sensual, provocative and violent, ripe with potent images, startling colors and disturbing questionsâ |Sentence by sentence,â The Vegetarianâ is an extraordinary experienceâ |â [It] will be hard to beat.â •â "The Guardian" This is an odd and enthralling novel; its story filled with nihilism but lyricism too, its writing understated even in its most fevered, violent moments. It has a surreal and spellbinding quality, especially in its passage on nature and the physical landscape, so beautiful and so magnificently impervious to the human suffering around it."â "Arifa Akbar, The Independentâ œThis short novel is one of the most startling I have readâ | Exciting and imaginativeâ |The author reveals how nature, sex and art crash through this polite societyâ |It is the women who are killed for daring to establish their own identity. The narrative makes it clear it is the crushing pressure of Korean etiquette which murders themâ |[A] disturbing book.â •â "Julia Pascal, The Independent" Immediately absorbing...The different perspectives offered are so beautifully distinctive...Every word matters."â "Sunday Herald" Shocking...The writing throughout is precise and spare, with not a word wasted. There are no tricks. Han holds the reader in a vice grip...The Vegetarianâ quickly settles into a dark, menacing brilliance that is similar to the work of the gifted Japanese writer Yoko Ogawa in its devastating study of psychological pain...The Vegetarianâ is more than a cautionary tale about the brutal treatment of women: it is a meditation on suffering and grief. It is about escape and how a dreamer takes flight. Most of all, it is about the emptiness and rage of discovering there is nothing to be done when all hope and comfort fails....A work of savage beauty and unnerving physicality."â "Irish Timesâ œThe Vegetarian is a book about the failures of language and the mysteries of the physical. Yet its message should not undermine Hanâ™s achievement as a writer. Like its anti-protagonist, The Vegetarian whispers so clearly, it can be heard across the room, insistently and with devastating, quiet violence. "Joanna Walsh, The New Statesman" [A] strange and ethereal fable, rendered stranger still by the cool precision of the prose | What is ultimately most troubling about Yeong-hye's post-human fantasies is that they appear to be a reasonable alternative to the world of repression and denial in which everyone around her exists. "Times Literary Supplement" "The Vegetarian is so strange and vivid it left me breathless upon finishing it. I don't think I've ever read a novel as mouth-wateringly poetic, or as drenched in hypnotic oddities, taboos and scandal. It seems to have been plucked out of the ether, ready-made to take us all by surprise. Exciting and compelling" Lee Rourke, New Humanist "The Vegetarian combines human violence and the possibility of innocence...[A] frightening beauty of a novel." -British Council Literature "Uncanny." "The Australian" Kang belongs to a generation of writers that aim to discover secret drives, ambitions, and miseries behind one's personal destiny...[The Vegetarian] deals with violence, sanity, cultural limits, and the value of the human body as the last refuge and private space." -Tiempo Argentino" [A] bloodcurdlingly beautiful, sinister story." Linda "The almost perverse seduction of this book originates in the poetry of the images. They are violently erotic and rather nightmarish; the novel is like a room full of large flowers, where the musky odour takes you by the throat." "De groene Amsterdammer" "For the fans of Haruki Murakami." "Gazet van Antwerpen (starred review) "Piercing... I was touched the most by the directness, the images, the poignant phrases and most of all the imagination with which it was written." "nrc Handelsblad" "A shocking, moving and thought-provoking novel." "Trouw" "Outright impressive." "HUMO" "One of the most impressive novels I have read recently... You need to read this book." Arnon Grunberg in De Volkskrant "The Vegetarian is exciting and original." "De Standaard der Letteren (starred review)" From the Hardcover edition.

This is a taut novella, about 190 pages, divided into 3 parts, written in lapidary precision, evident even in the translation. The first part is told from the husband's point of view: He watches in horror as his quiet, conventional life is disrupted by his wife's refusal to eat meat. Her vegetarian lifestyle is prompted at first by a dream, but strengthened by flashbacks of cruelty toward animals that she has witnessed in her childhood. The husband is a scoundrel. He possesses a cold rational aspiration toward mediocrity and does not want his masculinity challenged by an assertive woman, so he seeks in a wife a woman who is meek to the point of being a non-entity and a cipher, a being who will mold to his aspirations to corporate success and societal convention. But her vegetarianism disrupts his Â“carefully ordered existence.Â• She even rejects intimacy with her husband because his body smells like meat, and he becomes an object of revulsion. The wifeÂ’s refusal to eat meat, and her descent into madness, reminds me of two short stories, Â“Bartleby, the ScrivenerÂ• and Â“The Yellow Wall-Paper.Â• Like Bartleby, the wifeÂ’s refusal to comply with an authority figure’s orders becomes a metaphor for rejecting the assumed reality of societyÂ’s conventions. Like Â“The Yellow Wall-Paper,Â• the wife is suffocated by her marriage and can only rebel by embracing insanity, which of course throws a wrench into the husbandÂ’s life of falsehood and convention. Everyone gangs up on the wife to coerce her back to a meat-eating lifestyle. Even her own mother threatens her and at one point screams, Â“Look at yourself, now! Stop eating meat, and the world will devour you whole.Â• The themes of societyÂ’s complicity with sanctioned cruelty toward animals and oppression against women feel real and not like a shrill militant polemic on feminism and animal cruelty. The themes grow out of the novelÂ’s original vision, one drawn from a weird insane logic. The tone of the novel is riveting and reads like a horror novel. This is one of the best novels IÂ’ve read in a long time. Highly recommended.

Han KangÂ’s novel, The Vegetarian, tells the story of Yeong-hye, a non-descript South Korean housewife who, after a disturbing dream, stops eating meat as well as all animal-derived products. The novel is divided into three parts, each told from the point of view of a person who is impacted in some way by her decision. The first part is narrated by her husband, a callous, uncaring salary-man, who chose her specifically because she was unremarkable in every possible way. In the second part we see her through the eyes of her brother-in-law, an unsuccessful video artist, struggling to realize some vague pornographic vision. Finally, we see how her transformation and subsequent struggles with mental illness affect her sister. This was a difficult one. ItÂ’s very dark with an almost constant feeling of dread hovering over it. But the story is truly gripping, not to mention that trying to work out the authorÂ’s agenda kept me turning the pages despite myself. It touches on so many large social issues Â“gender, conformity, moral accountability, as well as more personal things like family relationships, abuse, violence, rage and self-image. Yeong-hye is repeatedly victimized, in various ways, by men who are either manipulative, predatory or just plain cruel. Yeong-hye's husband is an utterly conventional corporate striver, so her inability to conform to his expectations and societal norms ultimately destroys their marriage. As an artist, her brother-in-law views himself as an outsider and projects his dark, lustful fantasies onto her in pursuit of his vision. And her sister struggles with guilt over their upbringing with a monstrous father who singled Yeong-hye out for abuse. It's tough to summarize one thing that this deceptively slim little volume speaks to; just when I thought I had a handle on the author's over-arching message or theme, the book changed direction slightly and had me thinking about something else entirely. However, there is one particular instance of cruelty from Yeong-hye's childhood (one of the few passages told from her POV) that strongly suggests her vegetarianism and wish to reject her humanity is a form of atonement for her role in a completely horrific act of cruelty, however powerless she was to stop it. But the story also illustrates how one person's refusal to conform can have a domino effect on those around them - and how that might be viewed by many as destructive to the fabric of society. The writing is extremely confident and impactful. The author makes you almost believe in the plausibility of Yeong-hye's physical transformation because her conviction seems so unimpeachable and her desire so ardent. This is a heartbreakingly beautiful book that works on so many levels and touches on so many themes. Depressing, but worth it.
