"In Ota's approach of 'empathetic objectivity,' one senses that he identifies with her as an intellectual who did not fit into Japanese society, yet he strives to let her speak for herself." Sonja Arntzen, Asian studies, University of Toronto "For Canadian scholars in Japanese studies, Ota stands as a model of scholastic energy, academic productivity, and fine research." A.H. Ion, history, Royal Military College of Canada

Yuzo Ota is professor of history, McGill University, and the author of numerous books including Basil Hall Chamberlain: Portrait of a Japanologist.
