Customer Reviews

Also a lovely book. sad at times, amusing at others. Written with a sense of how the gentle side of human nature behaves. Also looks at some of the crazy co-incidences of life. How people can come together, through some inexplicable event, of a lost item..I really loved it and read it after reading "Lost for words" by Stephanie Butler. some of the little stories are quite surprising, some very amusing. If you are looking for a peaceful book, for holidays, or night-time reading, you will enjoy this book.

Selected this title as it was to be a feel good novel. It was indeed. I felt that the two parallel stories were not necessary though they did come together finally..Enjoyed her writing and will now look for another of her works.

Absolutely loved it. A dear man who has lost his wife picks up things that people have lost and labels them. When he dies, his housekeeper is given the task of tracing the owners and finding out how they lost the items. A handsome gardner and a little girl from next door get into the mix as well. Charming, funny.

I really enjoyed this book, something different how it ties stories in to the overall thread of the book. Lovely.

Enjoyable reading wayout happenings that had me chuckling. A few of the stories were so sad . Now after closing my ,book, i feel enjoyment .

Full of heart, friendship and kept promises, with the healthy addition of a dose of mystery and surprising twists. Brilliant characters throughout, which all come together in a complimentary fashion. Loved this book!

I really enjoyed this book. It has such a great message. The main character is lacking in confidence and needs something to make her feel worthwhile. I think many will be able to empathise with her situation. Also absolutely loved Eunice and Bomber....the not so traditional love story! This book is definitely worth a read.

A very sweet and heart rendering tale - not 'tongue-in-cheek', but genuinely 'innocent' and slightly 'old-fashioned' (dialogue and plot). I enjoyed reading it.
